With the overall objective to contribute towards greater access of war-affected citizens to reliable information by strengthening editorial and/or organizational capacity of the independent regional media, and specific objectives 1) to increase resilience of independent regional investigative journalism outlets (IJOs) and media; 2) to increase critical issues coverage by independent regional IJOs and media; and 3) to facilitate IJOs and regional media collaboration contributing to individual and organisational capacity and editorial performance, the Action comprises three Components: 1) Emergency Support to Regional Media; 2) Capacity Building Support to IJOs; and 3) Wider sectoral support, networking & lesson capture/learning.

In 2022 IWPR successfully launched the Ukraine's Regional Media Emergency Support (URMES) programme and provided 12 subgrants to 6 regional and 3 national IJOs, 2 regional media outlets and a local media development NGO, yielding 1,650 media materials which reached 41.8 million people. In addition, 46 journalists benefited from targeted mentoring support which resulted in the application of new and improved knowledge and skills at work. Subgrantees also reported the establishment of eight peer collaborations, while 42% of Action partners collaborated with national authorities. The Action supported the participation of 25 journalists to the 14th annual Ukrainian Investigative Journalism Conference (UIJC), run by the co-implementor – the Regional Press Development Institute in November 2022.
